“CRITIC’S CHOICE”

By

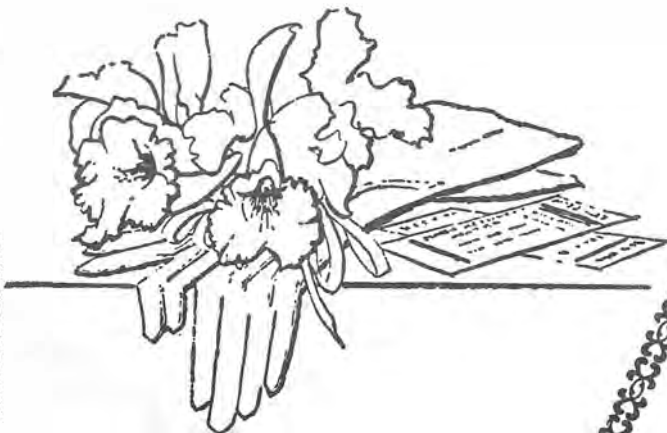

IRA LEVIN

“I sometimes have visions of a gag conference in which that slick character who is traditionally known as Manny bounces in, eyes ablaze, and bubbles over with: ‘Listen. This guy’s a dramatic critic, see? So his wife writes a play. He’s got to review the play. Take it from there.’”

DELOACH'S

CHOICE BITS

Playwright Ira Levin freely admits that he got the idea for tonight's show from the quotation, printed beneath the title a couple of pages back, from a book by famous drama critic Walter Kerr. In real life, Kerr's wife, playwright Jean Kerr, fares considerably better than the fictitious Angela Ballentine of our show, as the former's "Mary, Mary" is threatening to outrun "Tobacco Road." Incidentally, GLT plans to produce "Mary, Mary" as soon as it is released for non-professional production, which is never done until after a show completes its Broadway run.

First-timers for GLT in tonight's show are: (a) Jean Green Kearney (Mrs. John, Jr.), who gets some sort of award for devotion to duty, for slipping out of the hospital to come to rehearsals while recuperating from a near-tragic automobile wreck; (b) Rick Whittington, who must have inherited his love of the theater from GLT old-timers Daddy Aven and Uncle Bill; (c) Dave Hodges, who received some valuable experience with the Jackson Little Theatre before moving to Greenwood rather recently; (d) Dot Nash, who does her bit part of the maid so well, that she is clearly slated for bigger roles.

Second-timers in tonight's show are Louise Murrin and Bo (Arnold F.) Gwin, who by coincidence both had their GLT premiere last year in the same play. The outstanding job that both did in "Night Must Fall" insured that they would not be allowed to be idle this year.

Many-timer Ella Lay Merrick has been dubbed First Lady of GLT, as she still holds the record of having played more roles than anyone else in the club—and played them beautifully, too.
